

The EECE Department at Marquette University is proud to offer The Greater Milwaukee Foundation's Frank Rogers Bacon Scholarship to qualified EECE graduate students

This prestigious award is given annually to one or two students who are selected by the department on a competitive-basis from a pool of candidates satisfying the following minimum requirements:

1. Geographical criterion – student has to be from Southeast Wisconsin (or long-term resident—not only in the area for studies).
2. Financial need – the student must fill out the FAFSA application and qualify for some need.
3. Academics – student must be in good academic standing.
4. Support from an EECE adviser – student must have support from an EECE faculty research adviser who is willing to advise the student throughout the graduate program.
5. Graduate application: at the time of the application to the Fellowship, the student (a) must have submitted a complete application to the M.S. or Ph.D. degree in EECE at Marquette University, or (b) has already been enrolled in the EECE graduate program.

The Fellowship may include stipend (typically $19,190 for the academic year, plus summer stipend if the student qualifies and funds are available) and up to 18 credits hours of tuition. The scholarship is given for a duration of one year. A recipient can compete for the scholarship for subsequent years.

For best consideration, please contact the EECE Department Chair, Dr. Majeed Hayat, Majeed.hayat@marquette.edu and provide the following materials:

- Statement that (a) articulates the plans for the graduate degree in EECE and (b) certifies that the student meets the geographical criterion.
- Name of an EECE advisor who has committed to advising the student.
- Support letter from the EECE adviser

Applications are reviewed by the EECE Department and the Graduate School as they are received.
